WASHINGTON, D.C. – April 24, 2014 – Participants at AHIMA’s ICD-10 summit in Washington, DC, April 22-23, had an opportunity to offer their views on the delay and next steps for the industry during a real-time poll. Summit participants answered questions via text message and addressed a variety of key questions on ICD-10 implementation and next steps for moving forward.

Key results included:

- 88 percent were disappointed by the ICD-10 delay (69 total respondents).
42 percent said their organization has spent more than $1 million on implementation (54 total respondents).

91 percent said ICD-10 should not go into effect in stages (59 total respondents).

Do you think ICD-10 should go into effect in stages (different provider types at different times) rather than having a single compliance date across the industry?
• 50 percent would – if allowed – be interested in voluntary reporting of ICD-10 codes beginning on Oct. 1 2014 (62 total respondents)

If allowed, would your organization be interested in voluntary reporting of ICD-10 codes beginning on October 1, 2014?

- Yes
- No
- Not sure

- 54 percent did not want the partial code set freeze lifted (57 total respondents)
